Well-heeled designs inspired by the runway
By Matt Dougherty

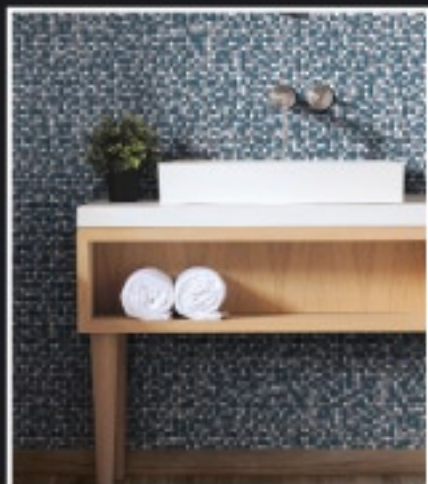

Black and White

The classic black and white look gets a futuristic upgrade in Louis Vuitton's spring 2019 collection. Mirroring that contemporary style is JANUS et Cie's lightweight polyethylene Scoop lounge chair, boasting a striking curved silhouette in matte anthracite. Newmor Wallcoverings, meanwhile, brings the graphic palette to the walls with its Art Deco wallcovering, made up of large-scale geometric tiles in a marble finish. Earth Tones

Being one with nature is just as prominent on the runway as it is in the built space. Burberry's sophisticated, minimal, and sleek collection matches Bernhardt Hospitality's Linea entertainment console, which features a dimensional front in a muted greige. Similarly, Crossville's Astral Plane is inspired by terra firma and comes in four colors, all made with a palette of earthy brown and gray. BERNHARDTHOSPITALITY.COM; CROSSVILLEINC.COM

Denim

Chanel's manmade beach provided the runway for its latest show, which was filled with bouts of denim. Country Floors' Aqua Forte stone series also champions the sturdy textile, with a blue jean finish created by etching and engraving methods. The stones are hand coloredized and then glazed with organic dyes. For a more literal approach, Applian's Denim mosaic resembles the fabric on a matte, textured surface.
